

Legislative candidates must qualify by June 5

BY TRACI BONNEY

A three-judge federal panel has set June 5 as the qualifying deadline for State Legislature candidates.

The panel, which was commissioned to oversee the state's redistricting efforts, set June 5 as the qualifying deadline, August 3 for the primary elections and August 25 for runoffs. The general election will be November 3, to coincide with the presidential and congressional elections.

The judges set the dates Monday, after deciding April 30 that the legislative elections would take place this fall.

This will be the second consecutive year for state elections, after lawmakers ran in their existing districts last fall when a proposed redistricting plan was rejected as discriminatory.

The Justice Department approved the new House plan earlier this year, and okayed most of the Senate plan, except for three southwest Mississippi districts. The department approved the Senate's revisions to those districts last Friday.

Rep. J.P. Compretta said the House plan moved some of his precincts into a new district, District 93. "Basically, the precincts south of I-10 in Hancock County that were in my district still are, while the ones north of I-10 went into District 93," he explained.

Precincts moved from his district into District 93 include Kiln East and West, Diamondhead, Fenton, Dedeaux and Catahoula. Other Hancock County precincts in the new district are John C. Stennis (three), Leetown, Flat Top, Crane Creek and Standard.

The district also includes four whole and two split precincts in Harrison County, two precincts in Pearl River County, and one split precinct in Stone County.

Sen. Vic Franckiewicz's district, District 46, includes all of Hancock County, along with western Harrison County and Pass Christian, according to the Secretary of State's office.

Winners in the November general elections will serve in the State Legislature until 1995.

Air Park runway limited to official vehicle usage

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

The Hancock County Port and Harbor Commission agreed to forward to the board of supervisors a copy of the April 14 approved motion which prohibids all unapproved vehicles from runways at Stennis Air Park.

Director Harold "Buz" Olsen informed the commission that the board of supervisors requested a resolution as to the commission's opinion on what activities could be permitted at the air park.

He added, though a resolution was proposed last month by airport committee chairman Pete Beebe and approved by the commission to allow only official vehicles or vehicles on airport business runway usage, the resolution had not yet been forwarded to the supervisors for their approval.

Olsen stated last month that according to Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) regulations, the commission needed

Paul Tisdale accepts superintendent contract

The Bay St. Louis-Waveland School Board finalized a contract with the district's new superintendent, Paul Tisdale, at the board's meeting Monday.

The board unanimously approved a motion from David Turcotte to offer Tisdale a two-year contract, with an option after one year and a salary of $52,000 for the first year. Tisdale accepted the contract.

Tisdale, an assistant principal at Biloxi High School, will

Council enters exec. session with Bay Cove casino owner

BY TRACI BONNEY

An executive session with Bay Cove casino officials took up nearly half of the Bay St. Louis City Council's recess meeting Tuesday.

The Council conducted routine business during the first hour — approving Beach Front Festival street closings, a bid of $12,879 from Catholic Engineering for a deep anode rectifier, and travel for purchase clerk Gordon Boh; addressing a suggestion from resident Richard Brehm concerning the asphaltting of Ibor Street to ease traffic congestion at Hwy. 90 and Washington Avenue; and discussing the current status of problems surrounding the painting of city water towers.

After regular business was finished, Mayor Edward Favre requested that the Council consider going into executive session for "transaction of business regarding the location of business or industry in Bay St. Louis."

The Council went into executive session with Marlin Torguson and Al Kokesch of Bay Cove Harbour for 45 minutes, and took no action following the session other than to adjourn to Tuesday for the next regular meeting.

Favre declined to comment on the nature of the executive session discussion.

Port and Harbor pays off initial park debt

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

Hancock County Port and Harbor Commission unanimously approved Monday the early pay off of a 1973 loan to the tune of a $17,000 to $18,000 savings.

The loan, made with the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) in 1973 was initially for $926,000. According to the commission members, the loan was made for infrastructure construction of the Port Bienville Industrial Park located in Pearlinton.

Although the commission had a year left until complete repayment of the loan, finance committee chairman Pete Beebe recommended early payment.

Beebe added, "Since we are holding enough funds to pay off the loan, the commission would save $17,000 to $18,000."

The loan is being paid at 6.75 percent interest, and the pay-off total is $230,286.

Commission director Harold "Buz" Olsen stated, "The early pay-off will benefit our record and assist us down the road should we apply for more EPA monies."

Collecting signatures

Diamondhead resident Stuart E. Aegler has collected more than 500 signatures locally on a petition to place Ross Perot's name on the state ballot for U. S. President. The Korean War veteran and businessman feels support for Perot in the county is "extremely strong" and crosses all socioeconomic levels. "People are tired of what they are getting from Washington," he said. A nationwide grassroots effort is underway to secure a place for Perot as an independent candidate. (Photo by Janet McQueen)

Gen. 1:1-3

Thank you, Father, for the reminder that You can make something wonderful out of chaos. Amen.

If you want favor with both God and man, and a reputation for good judgment and common sense, then trust the Lord completely. Don't ever trust yourself.

HHS repairs to begin in June

BY JACQUI COCHRAN
Architect John Fields received approval from the Hancock County School Board to begin repairs on the two-year old HHS complex this June.

Fields, representing Tompkins, Hansen, Fields and Muzzi of Jackson, reported contacting the various contractors and sub-contractors responsible for the initial work.

He stated an independent roof expert had been consulted on problem leaks, and sections of the roofs would have to be lifted for repairs.

He said, "I have the engineering plans for the cafeteria refuse system, including the grease trap and pulper, and I will give them to our engineers for review."

The cafeteria is believed to be the source of excessive grease build up in the Stennis Air Park Waste Water Treatment Facility.

Zoe Bretzius-Bowers of B&B Services previously reported the high school cafeteria grease trap to be too small for the present work load.

Fields added, an additional problem may be that the pulper/grinder does not flush through the grease trap, but empties its excess overflow directly into the system.

A complaint of malfunctioning of air-conditioner chillers/condensers at HHS is to be addressed, Fields explained, by balancing both the heating and air units. He said this had never been done and the sub-contractor believes this could be the source of the problem.

In other business the board approved:

the resignations of Blaize Anglada, secondary teacher, April 14, 1992; Margaret Rhodes, speech pathologist and Cynthia K. Ladner, elementary teacher, both June 1, 1992.

People sound Wakeup call

The People for the People and Operation Wakeup, two local community pride and education organizations, are working to reclaim area parks for their children, according to organizer Dana Benoit Sr. Volunteers from Shieldsboro, Easterbrook, Washington and other city streets were seen cutting saplings and clearing brush away from the fence line around the Martin Luther King Park on Washington Street Tuesday. Clockwise, from top left: Sheila Whavers clears cuttings while Daren Perkins decides which limbs to cut off a tree adjacent to the fence; three-year-old Dana Benoit Jr. works on a sand pile with a hoe; and Dina Benoit rakes leaves away from the fence. Dana Benoit Sr. said the people in the neighborhood were tired of seeing people gathering along the fence and throwing bottles into the park, so they made the area beyond the fence clearly visible from the street. They used tools lent by the city and by park neighbors Bernice and Reginald Robertson, who called the work "grand, just grand. I wish I was young enough to be out there with them." "QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

The 13th annual Beach Front Festival will be held this Saturday from 11 a.m. until 7 p.m.

This is the first year for the event to be sponsored by the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce and as you note, the day has been changed from a Sunday to a Saturday.

Much work has been done by the chamber in preparation for this big annual event.

Among the featured attractions will be a Children's Art Festival. This festival, located at the Main Street parking lot behind the old Peoples Federal building, will give our youngsters an opportunity for a 'hands on' look at the world of art and the fun of making their own creations.

Barbara Brodtmann is the Children's Arts Festival chairman and, I am told, will have a lot of helpers for this day of fun for the young. There will be live entertainment throughout the day for the kids, too.

The Beach Front Festival will feature this year local talent for entertainment and Bill Johnson, festival over-all chairman, has been busy lining up the most popular groups.

Among the groups scheduled for appearances include, Pat Murphy, Guitar Bo & Dee, Keith Hoda and The Country Sounds, Night Shift, Mike and Kathy Keel and Mississippi's Mamas.

There will be some 40 arts and crafts booths, things that are hand made, artists making sketches, face painting, etc.

Foods of all types will be available, and these will only be by vendors who have establishments operating in Hancock County, reports Basil Kennedy, chamber president.

I hope to see you at the Beach Front Festival Saturday.

Television has made Americans aware of many of the animals and insects that inhabit Australia.

We Americans think many of these animals and insects are odd in shapes and sizes.

I now know that the six members of Rotary International's GSE Australian Team found out something about an insect that inhabits our Mississippi Gulf Coast area.

The insect I am speaking about is our ever abundant supply of gnats.

The Australians describe them as being almost unseen and 'all mouth.'

It seems the long cool nights we have had this year have contributed to the extra long season for the pesky critters.

To find out if they are around, all one has to do is try and do some weeding early in the morning or late in the afternoon.

If gnats are present, it doesn't take long to be discovered by them. Oh, how I hate for them to get into my eyes and ears.

The Bible tells us, God created everything for a purpose, as yet, I haven't figured out the purpose of gnats.

The Summer Kickoff Beach Run, sponsored by St. Stanislaus Athletic Club will be Saturday, May 23 in front of the school.

There will be a 5K run at 9 a.m. and a one-mile run at 8:30 a.m.

The age groups for the 5K are, 16-under; 17-27; 28-38; 39-49; and 50 and over. Entry fee is $10.

Pre-registration is by mail, or morning of race from 7:30-8:30 in front of St. Stanislaus.

Coach Eddie Burgo would like to see several hundred runners for the 5K which will be run through the City of Bay St. Louis.

There will be T-shirts for the first 100 entrants and awards for top three finishers in 5K and age group finishers 5K.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Honesty, integrity alive and well

To the Editor,

On May 4, I had the misfortune to lose my purse on St. Joseph Street in Waveland. It contained my driver's license, cash, credit cards and the usual paraphernalia that women seem to carry around in their purses.

Within one hour I received a call from Roger Miller, employee of Bay Carpet and Interiors, who informed me he had found my purse. Mr. Miller telephoned me from a job site, and not only did he return my purse with all the initial contents and cash, but personally delivered it to me at my place of employment.

It is extremely refreshing to know that there are still honest people in this world like Mr. Miller, who possess a soundness of character, moral ethics and a genuine concern for his fellow man.

FROM THE GOVERNOR'S OFFICE

Legislature raises taxes despite gubernatorial veto

As you may have read in this very paper, the Mississippi Legislature saw fit last week to raise your taxes to the tune of $166 million beginning June 1, 1992, despite my gubernatorial veto.

Although I regret the fact that we have missed the first great opportunity we have faced to get government growth and spending under control, I have been encouraged by some of what I've seen in Mississippi over the last two weeks.

Even though it is difficult to fight the organized special interest groups, for the first time in a long time, "grassroots" Mississippians reached out and flexed their muscle.

This is what I envisioned when I ran for Governor. The majority that has so many times been silent because they thought it wouldn't do any good, finally began to stir and shape debate.

This has been a great learning experience for those who once thought that no one listened in this big stone building.

Now that they have witnessed how close the populace can actually come to governing their government, there will be no stopping them in the battles to come.

Mississippians will now have to use their energy and experience from this first debate for Round Two. This round will be just as important as the first.

Now that some of the Legislators have approved $166 million of taxpayer money to go to educational administrators, let us try something different this year for the sake of our children.

Unlike in years past when the debate and fervor surrounding education funding was over once the bill became law, let the people of Mississippi appoint themselves as permanent "guardians" of this new layer of money from their wallets. Let us stand over the shoulder of our school administrators when they receive their check and point to our children's classrooms and say "Put it there."

Let us attend our PTA meetings and ask questions like, "Where is our money going?" Let us join forces in the next legislative session and talk substantively about downsizing bureaucracy, consolidating school districts and implementing "Mississippi 2000" with teachers, parents and community leaders all taking part.

I started Round Two last week by signing a bill allocating $10 million in deficit appropriations to the Minimum Foundation education program.

This money will go straight to Mississippi classrooms where it belongs. It is time for Mississippi taxpayers to regroup and journey to our classrooms too. When you get there you will realize that there is much to do that raising taxes will never touch.

Thank you again, Mississippi, for joining with us and please do not be discouraged. Government is just like a human being—its old habits are hard to break—but when they're broken, it is all the better for it.

THE PEOPLE'S BUSINESS

A Weekly Editorial
From Mississippi Economic Council

A Mississippi marketplace

Another page has been added to the history books.

Many of the former Soviet republics, including Russia, have taken another step forward into the world marketplace with their acceptance as members of the International Monetary Fund and the World Bank.

This is a much-needed boost for the people of these republics, as they strive to build an economy based on a free market after 75 years of communism. Theirs will not be an easy task, and the support of the IMF and World Bank demonstrates that the rest of the world is ready to help.

The emergence of Russia and the other republics also provides an improved market for trade something which Mississippi should be poised to take advantage of.

Mississippi has been exporting poultry and other products to the former Soviet Union for several years now. According to American Poultry International, a Jackson-based company specializing in poultry exports, Mississippi has shipped approximately 250,000 tons of chicken products to the newly independent republics in just the past two years.

Even more impressive is the fact that the value of all Mississippi exports destined for the republics grew, from 1989 to 1990, by nearly 2,000 percent, according to figures from the Southern Growth Policies Board.

We already have our foot in the door of this marketplace; the task now is to kick the door wide open. And when we do, let's enter with our usual hospitality, our arms full of quality Mississippi products, and show the republics what we have to offer.

EYES ON MISSISSIPPI

By Bill Minor

Lawmakers create a gimmick labeled I & R

The proposed constitutional amendment that has come out of the 1992 Legislature euphemistically called "Initiative and Referendum," reminds one of the Biblical line: The Lord giveth, and the Lord taketh away.

On one hand, the lawmakers would "give" Mississippians the power to put proposed changes in the state constitution on the ballot by petition. But then they have thrown a veritable minefield in the way of Initiative proposals which would make it very difficult for many to survive.

It's evident that the legislators, knowing that they had a commitment to the public to do SOMETHING about giving the people some direct voice in writing their laws, have done as little as possible. What they have created is a gimmick labeled I & R to take back to the voters in elections later this year.

To begin with, there is no referendum in the I & R measure that will go on the November ballot. Referendum is the people power to repeal laws by the petition method. This proposal doesn't allow that.

Then, the initiative right in the measure only applies to proposing amendments to the state Constitution. It does not provide for initiating statutory changes.

And to propose a constitutional amendment petitioners would have to get signatures of at least 12 percent of the voters in the last gubernatorial election, a threshold which is higher, far higher, than any state in the union with the lone exception of Wyoming.

At 12 percent, based on the 1991 general election, Mississippi initiative petitions would have to have about 89,000 signatures.

In most initiative states the requirement is 5 to 8 percent of the votes in the last general election for governor.

Another hurdle thrown in the way of petitioners is a limitation in the measure adopted by the Legislature that no more than 20 percent of the signatures could come from one congressional district. Obviously, meeting this limit would be most difficult in the Second District which has a 60 percent black population majority but a much smaller percentage of registered voters.

After getting the required signatures, the initiative proposal would still have to go to the Legislature at the next session before it could make its way to the ballot. Lawmakers would have a crack at adopting, amending or rejecting it, by a majority vote (as opposed to a 2/3rds vote required to approve a constitutional amendment proposed in the Legislature.)

If the Legislature amended the initiative proposal, both the original and the amended version would go on the ballot and voters could adopt one or the other, but not both. If both got a majority vote, the one with the highest number of votes would win.

Here is where the Legislature has rigged a few bobby traps that will have the voter reeling to figure out how to cast his vote.

First you would have to vote on the question whether or not you want to vote for or against either or both the initiative and/or alternative. Then after doing that, in the second instance you would mark your choice of either the initiative or the alternative.

But if you didn't vote on the first question, your ballot on the choice between the initiative or the alternative wouldn't count.

Four things would be off-limits for initiatives: the bill of rights, the right-to-work provision in the constitution, the Public Employees Retirement System, and any modification of the initiative process for proposing constitutional amendments.

Some lawmakers believe that the latter prohibition would actually foreclose any future attempt to change the initiative system once it is put into constitution. Sen. Claude Bilbo of Pascagoula, who helped produce the final conference version of the measure, said he didn't think so.

There are other concerns that the initiative measure may kill forever the movement to replace the state's post-Reconstruction era constitution that is now 102 years old. And many fear that it will have a chilling effect on the Legislature proposing any new amendments to the constitution on its own since the people will have that right.

It's going to be a Hobson's choice in November for those who have long advocated that "people power" for Mississippians should be restored, after it was wrongly taken away from the 70 years ago. The Legislature has always dreaded I & R like the plague. Now it is trying to inoculate itself from it.

STREET TALK

How do you feel about the New Orleans Carnival anti-discrimination ordinance permitting gender exclusion?

"I feel a private club should have the right to choose its members. No private organization should be forced to open its membership. If it was a public organization there would be no choice. I feel they are doing the city a favor by marching. The city should start its own clubs and open their membership to who ever they choose."

Harold Manuel
Bay St. Louis

"I'm for it. What they are saying is they want to remain sex exclusive. The men's organizations should remain so, just as the women's should. As far as I know gender discrimination is not against the Constitution where the other points of contention are."

Jay Kleinman
Waveland

"It shouldn't be. There shouldn't be any kind of discrimination. Carnival groups should not be able to discriminate if they are parading and using city streets and city police for crowd control. They should honor equal rights in their membership requirements."

Kathy Pearson
Bay St. Louis

"I think they should. Sometimes it's nice to be with a group of women and I can understand men feeling the same way, especially when they have a lot of things in common."

Carlotta Bergeron
Pass Christian

"I would think they should abolish Mardi Gras. From a Christian point of view it is nothing but a pagan holiday. As far as the gender discrimination question, I don't think it matters whether the clubs stay all male or all female. Today, they are going too far with this discrimination issue. They are discriminating against the whites more than the blacks and it's time they do something about that. They can have black colleges and organizations. They should be able to have white ones also."

BHS ATHLETIC CLUB
Joe Von Antz with the Bay High School Athletic Club updated the board about the club's activities, specifically dealing with the athletic field house and the football field.

He told the board the field house, when finished, will be worth about $80,000.

"The coaches are ecstatic about the field house, and the students really love it," he commented.

Von Antz said the athletic club plans to construct a donation board to put outside the field house. The board will list members of the Gold Club (those who have donated $100 or more), the Blue Club (those making donations of $50 or more), and the White Club (those who have donated $25 or more), as well as the names of people who have given materials and time to completing the field house.

In addition to the construction of the field house, other athletic club activities have included the second annual Meet the Team Night, the re-institution of the Mullet Bowl, a turkey shoot and fish fry whose proceeds went to the athletic department, a Saints Mania raffle, a Homecoming Dance, Senior Appreciation Night and the selection of Players of the Week.

Von Antz said the club also bought the sheet music for "Eye of Tiger" for the high school band to counteract last football season's gimmick-of-choice, the controversial tomahawk chop copied from Atlanta Braves fans.

Plans for next year include activities to boost community involvement, a two- to three-day class reunion event for BHS alumni, correction of drainage problems on the football field, and the possible installation of a sprinkler system to properly water the field.

J.E. Loiacano said although they have no cost estimate for a sprinkler system, they have been told an automatic system should cost only $250 to $300 more than a manual one.

"The club plans to fund the system, once we decide which way to go," Loiacano said.

MEAL PRICE INCREASE

The board voted 5-0 to increase the price of school breakfasts and lunches.

The new prices, which will be for the 1992-1993 school year, are: breakfast, all schools — 50 cents full price, 30 cents reduced and 80 cents for adult employees; lunch, all schools — 40 cents reduced, $1.75 adult employee and $2 guest; full-price lunch — $1 at North Bay and Waveland elementaries, $1.25 at Bay Middle and High schools.

Superintendent Robert Magee, who said he was recommending the increases reluctantly "since I'm about to become a guest," explained that food service supervisor Judy Fletcher requested the increases to cover rising food and supply costs.

The new prices are comparable with those in other Coast schools, where lunch prices range from 85 cents to $1.50 for elementary school, 95 cents to $1.50 for high school, $1.50 to $2 for adult employees and $2 across the Coast for guests.

OTHER BUSINESS
The board voted to:
—solicit quotes from local insurance agents for the district's policies which expire July 1;

—allow Parents and Professionals of Exceptional Children to use North Bay Elementary again this summer for its special education summer arts, crafts and recreation program;

—approve use of the high school gym by the Bay-Waveland Headstart Program May 15 for its graduation;

—grant eight days of catastrophic leave to a district employee;

—accept the resignations of Bay High teacher Adrienne Bremer, Bay Middle teacher Melissa Donald, Bay Middle secretary Patricia Breland, and North Bay teacher assistant Joan Estapa; —and approve the hiring recommendations of Yolanda Bradley, Joan Estapa and Stacey Lovitt as upper elementary teachers, and Henry Paul Jordan as a Bay High janitor for the rest of the school year.

The board went into executive session to discuss a student matter, then left executive session and adjourned the meeting.

According to Clermont volunteer fireman Pete LeStelle, the Jaws of Life were used to free Anthony T. Chifci Jr. of Baton Rouge from the cab of a 1990 Chevy pickup.

Hancock Sheriff's Deputy Dennis Tartavouille reported Chifci ran off the road at approximately 12:15 p.m. May 7.

Tartavouille said, "He was heading west down Railroad Avenue, started into a curve, and the truck overturned several times."

Chifci was cited for reckless driving and DUI after refusing to take an intoxication test. He was taken to Hancock Medical Center by Mobile Medic.

LeStelle reported assisting WFD, who supplied use of the Jaws of Life, was Bayside Volunteer Fire Dept.

COOKING UP A STORM

By Katy McGuire
Caire

As the cooks of Old Italy have known for many a year, and many cooks in America have come to realize in recent times, both in the kitchen and at table, the tomato with its tasty, robust sauce is only one of many, many ways to enhance pasta of all sorts and shapes and sizes.

Too many cooks think only of the long-simmered tomato sauce as fitting accompaniment to spaghetti; but, if you've ever eaten a plate or bowl of pasta sauced only with a good olive oil, garlic and freshly minced parsley, you know how very tasty such simple combinations can be. And, pasta primavera, with its fresh-from-the-garden vegetables, spilling over the pasta, along with olive oil or butter or a garlicky Italian dressing, is delicious.

As long as there's pasta of some sort in the cupboard, the resourceful cook need never be at a loss when faced with unexpected guests at mealtime, or pressed for time to cook up a meal, or with the need to stretch the food budget, and so forth.

Quick to cook and serve with whatever sauce ingredients answer to your whim or are at hand on the shelves or in the fridge or freezer, pasta may be a hurry-up supper dish or a more elaborate "company concoction" equally tasty and filling in either guise. For instance, to the olive, oil, garlic and parsley sauce, you might add quickly sautéed shrimp or oysters or leftover ham or chicken, or vegetables, or whatever comes to hand as your rummage through your supplies.

One day recently, after munching for a day or so on the assorted raw vegetables left over from a cocktail tray, complete with a creamy, garlicky, sour cream-spinach dip, I stirred up a "garden pasta" sort of dish. I heated the broccoli cauliflower, carrots, celery and radish slices and pieces in the merest bit of water, drained and mixed them with the just-cooked fettucini, folded in the sour-cream mixture, and seasoned it all a bit more, and enjoyed.

At times, I enjoy thin, thin spaghetti or linguini with merely a little olive oil, fresh-ground pepper and freshly grated Romano cheese; try it, you may become "addicted" to it and it's ever so easy! At other times, I like:

LINGUINI WITH SHRIMP

1/2 cup or less olive oil, as you prefer
3 cloves garlic, halved
1 lb. linguini (or other pasta of your choice)
1 Tbsp. butter or margarine
1/4 tsp. freshly ground pepper

2 Tbsp. chopped fresh parsley (I prefer the flat-leaved Italian parsley for this dish because of its more intense flavor)

1 lb. shrimp (or more, according to your taste and budget) shelled

Splashes of hot pepper sauce, to your taste

Pepper, salt as desired

Heat the oil and brown the garlic, barely brown it, then toss the cloves away; you want just the flavored oil. Add the shelled shrimp, and sauté for just a few minutes. Meanwhile cook the pasta al dente (firm to the teeth, not mushy) and drain and add the parsley and butter and oil. Gently mix all together and enjoy. Pass freshly grated Romano cheese or grated Parmesan with this—and I like to add squeezings of fresh lemon as well. (Four to 6 servings).

Jonathan Sher competed for the Rocks in the state tournament at the boys' singles position. He won his first round match but lost in the second round to the tournament's eventual runner-up.

The Rock-A-Chaws teamed with Our Lady Academy during the regular season to finish with 13-5. The OLA girls' doubles tandem of Lindy Heitzmann and Caroline Weems also won the Class 2-A state title this year.

In quarterfinal play, the Rocks came from behind to defeat McComb, 3-6, 7-5, 6-3.

In the semi-finals the team rallied to defeat Laurel, 5-7, 6-3, 6-0.

The championship match saw the Rock-A-Chaws give an excellent account of themselves in an extremely close match. They came from behind once again and held on to outlast a talented Byram High team by a score of 6-7 (5-7), 7-6 (7-5), 6-3 to claim the state title.

"This one was every bit as sweet as last year's victory," Coach Labat stated. "Especially since we overcame a lot of adversity to win it."

"Craig (Christopher) filled in for Francisco (Corral) and made some big shots under pressure. We relied on Myron's (Labat Jr.) steadiness and experience to dig us out of some really tight spots."

Corral teamed with Labat throughout the regular season but was unable to play in the

"The quick look data looks good." These were the findings of Mississippi Test Facility personnel after scanning tapes of performance obtained during last Friday's full duration acceptance firing of the S-11 Saturn V-Apollo second phase moon shot booster rocket at Mississippi Test Facility. If the data proves successful the component will be shipped out on Feb. 5 via river barge to Michoud. There it will be off-loaded and put on board a sea going barge for passage to Cape Kennedy. The component is scheduled to become part of the first Saturn V vehicle whose launch date is anticipated to be in the second quarter of this year.

FISHIN' Y'ALL

By Jim Maness

Fish plentiful at abandoned marina

It's time to go fishin' y'all. Now I am told that Joey Dedeaux (age 9) landed a 24-inch red fish on dead shrimp fished on the bottom next to the train trestle in Henderson Point. I am assured by his cousin, Daylon, who was unwilling to give his age, that he caught a red that was four times as big as Joey's fish, but it got away. Likely story, Daylon.

It appears Joey did everything right, and landed his fish with very little help.

Daylon assured me, he most definitely would have landed the bigger fish if that monster telephone pole would not have come out of nowhere and viciously attacked and broken his line.

All of this action occurred around the old abandoned marina on Henderson Point. I checked this spot out and, boy, does it look like a fish "hand-out." There are pilings and poles all over the place. I am sure there are fish in this area—maybe some at least as big as the one that got away from Daylon.

The way to get to the abandoned marina by land is to take the street on the Bay St. Louis side of Henderson Point. Be careful of private property.

If you go by water to the marina area, it is located between the train trestle and the Bay bridge on the Henderson Point side of the Bay. Ya can't miss it unless your eyesight has been diminished by barley pop. In that case, you should not be in your boat.

Strongly recommend you use at least 17-pound test line and a good steel leader at least 24 inches long if you fish this area. Most of the fish are reported to become very upset when hooked and have a tendency to want to get off the hook. This generally means that they like to wrap your line around one of the barnacle encrusted piling, and see how resistant your line is to cuts and nicks. More times than not, your line and the fish will part company. This is why at least a 24-inch steel leader is necessary to fish in the marina area.

Bordage Fish Camp reports some really nice trout are coming out of the Louisiana Marsh area. The biggest fish are being caught on the biggest of the beetle tails and on the big plastic cacaho tails. This is a case where the larger the bait (with-in reason) the larger the fish.

While on the subject of the Louisiana Marsh; now is a good time to remind the fishin' buddies that it is a long way, a fur piece, to the marsh by boat. The wise fisherman needs to take the good precaution of filing a float plan. Man, tell somebody where you are going and what time you expect to get back. It's bad news bears to breakdown or have problems and not to know that somebody can find you—there is a lot of water out there.

Closer to home, where a boat is not necessary, the fishin' piers are producing some fish using a piece of shrimp on either shad rigs under a cork or beetles in tandem under a cork.

These fishin' piers are really great for family fun as the kids get the chance to fish and move around. This keeps them from getting a bad case of the he-be-jebie dilliwankles. In other words, they don't rock the boat and have a good time to boot.

Wade fishin' is producing some nice specks and a few keepers.

The hot bait for wade fishermen this week is the white grub.

This week's wonderful wise words: Tourists don't need a license to fish off of the piers.

But you have never seen a he-be-jebie dilliwankle, turtle.

Holland led PRC in batting

Before the 1992 Pearl River Community College Wildcat baseball season began, coach Jim Nightengale said, "This may be the year, but then again, maybe not."

It was not. Nightengale faced a disappointing year which ended in a 20-25 record. Plagued with injuries, Nightengale faced his first losing season as coach of the Wildcats, who made it to the state playoffs four consecutive years.

Nightengale credited the less-than-flattering year to a lack of consistency.

"After many unexpected victories in the early going, we couldn't put together the chemistry to win the crucial games," he said.

Bright spots in the season came from Wildcat Pitcher James Gamble of Bayou Vista, La., who went 8-3 for the year with a 1.7 ERA in 95 innings. Sophomore catcher Bob Holland of Bay St. Louis led the Wildcats in batting with a .385 average in 92 plate appearances. Sophomore Wendell Magee of Hattiesburg, who also played football for PRC, led the team with six homeruns with 87 times at the plate.

Rockin' the Festival

Popular local musicians featured in Beach Front Festival Saturday

Hancock County, with a reputation for knowing how to have fun, will kick off the summer season Saturday, May 16, with the 13th annual Beach Front Festival in Bay St. Louis.

Music, an integral part of the country's culture, will set a brisk pace for festival goers. Entertainers will include local favorites and headliners from the Gulf Coast entertainment circuit.

The Mississippi Mamas will kick off the music at the main stage located at Beach Boulevard and Main Street from 11:30 until 12:30 p.m.

Niteshift, a five-member band playing a varied format of pop, rock and country music will take the stage at 12:30.

Guitar Bo and Miss Dee strike up at 2 p.m. This local duo has the "soul of the city" and always plays the crowd's favorites.

Country music lovers will enjoy Keith Hoda and the Country Sounds when they take the stage at 3 p.m.

Mike and Kathy Keel will accelerate the tempo with contemporary favorites beginning at 4:30 p.m.

The Pat Murphy Band will rock out the festival beginning at 5:30.

Sponsored by the Hancock Chamber of Commerce, in cooperation with the Bay St. Louis Business Association, the Beach Front Festival will be rockin' and rollin' with music, local foods, children's activities, arts and crafts beginning at 11 a.m. There is a $2 admission. Children 12 and under are admitted free.

The colors of a summer by the Bay

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

This year's Beach Front Festival will be represented in the yellows, greens, blues and magentas of silkscreen prints by Candace Strahan.

"It is quite exciting, and I feel very pleased with the design and colors as representative of downtown," said Strahan.

She said the original Beach Front Festival organizers, the Bay St. Louis Business Association, joined with the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce for the promotion of this year's festival.

The organizers did not have the time to sponsor the traditional contest for this year's poster selection. Strahan, asked by the chamber to develop a design, invested her own time and money in the project with no promises of profits attached.

"I have intentionally made the format for the print smaller than previous years' posters."

"I believe the print will be less expensive to frame, and more suitable for those odd-sized areas of the wall lying vacant."

"To my knowledge this print will be the first Beach Front Festival representation completed by a Bay St. Louis artist from concept to execution, and sold as original work."

"Nancy Rupp did her work design, but the final poster is a reproduction of that work. Nadine Stamm is another artist who created her own design, but the silkscreen was executed in New Orleans. Also she did hand painting on the print, rendering the final work mixed media."

SILKSCREEN PROCESS
As a silkscreen, each print will be an original work of art, numbered and signed.

Practicing the techniques of serigraphy, Strahan has divided her composite design into four separate patterns.

Each pattern has been silk stenciled so that paint may be gently pushed through and imprinted onto a base material.

Moving the base material from screen to screen while alternating colors the overall image at last reveals Strahan's intended representation.

The silkscreen printing process is unique in that each print is handmade and therefore individual.

Strahan said she first produced a silkscreen print as a high school student in 1973. Art classes at Louise S. McGehee High School in New Orleans encouraged her to pursue her interest through a fine arts degree. She attended Newcomb College and eventually earned a degree from the University of New Orleans with a major in print making.

Strahan and her husband, James Strahan, a geophysicist, moved from New Orleans in 1984 and purchased a home in Bay St. Louis.

In 1989 she began Screen-door Graphics and joined the artisan and business community of the area.

She began her business with T-shirts, small signs, bumper stickers and caps. Today, Strahan's original Bay St. Louis design T-shirts express the freshness of the tiny city by the bay.

Having no indication of how well received her design may be on Saturday, Strahan just hopes for the best. "I am still reworking the greens of the print. At this time, I plan to make 200 or less prints."

As former president of the BSL Business Association, Strahan expressed concern for the success of this year's festival.

"It is important that the festival draws people from surrounding locations. Once they have seen and experienced the uniqueness of Bay St. Louis, I am sure they will return again and again."

"We have wonderful things going on here, and with the summer approaching, this is our time to show it off."

Children's Art Festival offers many activities

The Children's Art Festival offers fun for kids at the Beach Front Festival. It is free of charge to children under 12.

Local artists and volunteers will assist children ages 3-12 in experiencing "hands-on art." Activities will include several types of painting exercises, clay sculpting, weaving, pasta and clothes pin art. T-shirts for young artists will be available at the CAF information booth.

Pony rides, clown performances, puppet shows, face painting and balloon animals will be all-day events that youngsters may enjoy.

Special entertainment includes Janie Kreishman, Good Fairies of Hullen Ridge; MS Clown Guild and Shrine Clowns; Dragon Master showcase; Cherie Schadler, singer; Dinosaurous by Vickie Young; Arabesque School of Dance and Teakwondo Kids Exhibit.

Each child participating in the CAF will be given a certificate stating that he is an official artist. All children under the age of 6 must be accompanied by an adult.

A baby tent with toys and sand box for children under 3 will be available. No babysitting services will be provided.

Festival street closings, rules

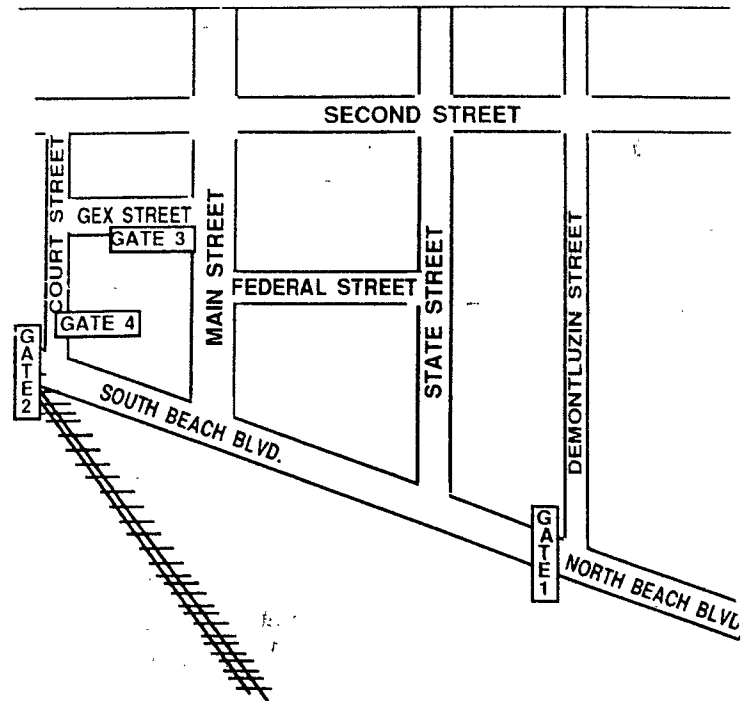

The 13th annual Beach Front Festival will kick off summer activities for Hancock County Saturday, May 16 on Beach Boulevard and Main Street, Bay St. Louis. Sponsored by the Hancock Chamber of Commerce, in cooperation with the Bay St. Louis Business Association, festival activities open to the public at 11 a.m.

Beach Boulevard at De Montluzin Avenue and the railroad tracks, the 100 blocks of Main Street, State Street and Court Street will be closed to through traffic beginning at 7 a.m. The streets will remain closed until the final music performance and all equipment is removed. Full traffic access will be restored by 9 p.m.

As the host city for the festival Bay St. Louis Mayor Edward Favre has issued festival rules that will help ensure safety and fun for all festival goers. Coolers containing beverages or food, glass containers, weapons of any type will be prohibited on festival grounds. Skateboards, bicycles and animals will also be prohibited.

This is a fun festival. We want everyone to enjoy themselves and be safe. These prohibitions are a minor inconvenience for the public. I'm confident they won't cause any problems," said Favre.

The festival is sponsored by the Hancock Chamber of Commerce, in cooperation with the Bay St. Louis Business Association.

PRCC slates graduation May 15

Pearl River Community College's annual spring graduation ceremonies will be Friday, May 15 at the M. R. White Coliseum.

There will be two ceremonies this year: a formal graduation for academic students at 4 p.m., followed by services for vocational-technical students beginning at 7.

The annual pinning ceremony for nursing graduates will be at 1:30 p.m. in the M.R. White Coliseum.

The separate graduation ceremonies were necessary due to the lack of space in the 3,000-seat coliseum.

Last year, 583 students received diplomas or certificates of proficiency. The 1991 crowd of family and friends filled the stands with many being forced to stand during the ceremony.

Of the 15 public Mississippi community colleges, Pearl River ranks sixth in total enrollment. In 1991, however, statistics show that PRC was third in the total number of graduates.

A DIFFERENT VIEW

By Traci Bonney

EDITOR'S NOTE: Miss Bonney's brain mysteriously interfaced with a Sea Coast Echo computer terminal earlier this week. The problem has been corrected, but we claim no responsibility for the contents of this column, and remind the readers that the opinions expressed here are not necessarily those of the newspaper's management.

My phone is dead. It happened when I was unraveling the receiver cord. I unplugged it from the base and watched the cord spin for a couple of minutes as it returned to its natural, mostly-untangled state.

When I tried to plug the cord back in, I discovered that a little plastic piece was in my hand instead of being attached to the phone. This little plastic piece was the little plastic piece that keeps the cord clicked into the phone base.

No little plastic piece, no phone.

Why does our technology depend on things that fall apart if you just look at them?

Okay, my phone has been resurrected. Our resident miracle worker, Ellis, found a new cord from who-knows-where.

That's a relief, I was about to swipe an advertising department phone.

I still maintain, though, that we shouldn't have to rely so heavily on things that fall apart so easily.

Imagine if you will (and even if you won't, I'll imagine it for you) what would happen if all the electric, electronic and other gadgets that play such a large part in our lives decided, just for the heck of it, to torment us by not working.

Sarah and Joe wake up one Saturday morning to discover that the face of their alarm clock is blank. Oh well, they think, at least it went kaput on a Saturday.

The bleary-eyed couple walks into the kitchen, only to find all their small appliances — the toaster, blender, food processor and coffeemaker — clustered together in the center of the counter. It almost looks as though the appliances are huddled in a conference.

Joe and Sarah both rub their eyes — I need some coffee, Joe thinks — and when they look again, everything is back in its proper place.

Joe grabs his favorite mug and reaches for the coffee pot. Pouring air into his cup, he says, "Honey, I thought you preset the maker to have our coffee ready this morning."

Sarah answers, "I did." She checks the filter, which is full of coffee, and the reservoir, where the water is waiting to drip, then hits her head with her hand and exclaims, "What an idiot! I probably forgot to turn the thing on."

She looks at the hole where on/off switch should be, then sees the switch further down the counter — where she thought she'd imagined seeing the pot a minute ago.

"Joe, this may sound like a weird question," she says, holding the switch out to him, "but did you see all the appliances —

Technology gone mad

"— grouped together on the counter?" he finished.

They stare at one another for a few moments as their eyebrows shoot up into their hairlines, then both make a beeline for the bedroom.

The alarm clock power cord has mysteriously detached itself from the clock.

A rapid, frantic inspection of the house reveals that every appliance which is more advanced than a clothes pin has discarded some small piece of itself, rendering itself inoperative.

Joe and Sarah begin to think the unthinkable — that the appliances in their house have somehow taken on wills of their own and revolted. The two distraught people think they hear the Twilight Zone theme song somewhere in the background.

They race into the garage, only to find small car parts littering the floor beneath both cars. Even the garage door opener is missing its buttons.

Sarah and Joe back through the door into the kitchen, where they hear a low, sinister, metallic laugh....

Okay, okay — so my idea is definitely far-fetched.

But if the steam button on your iron mysteriously falls out, don't say you weren't warned.
